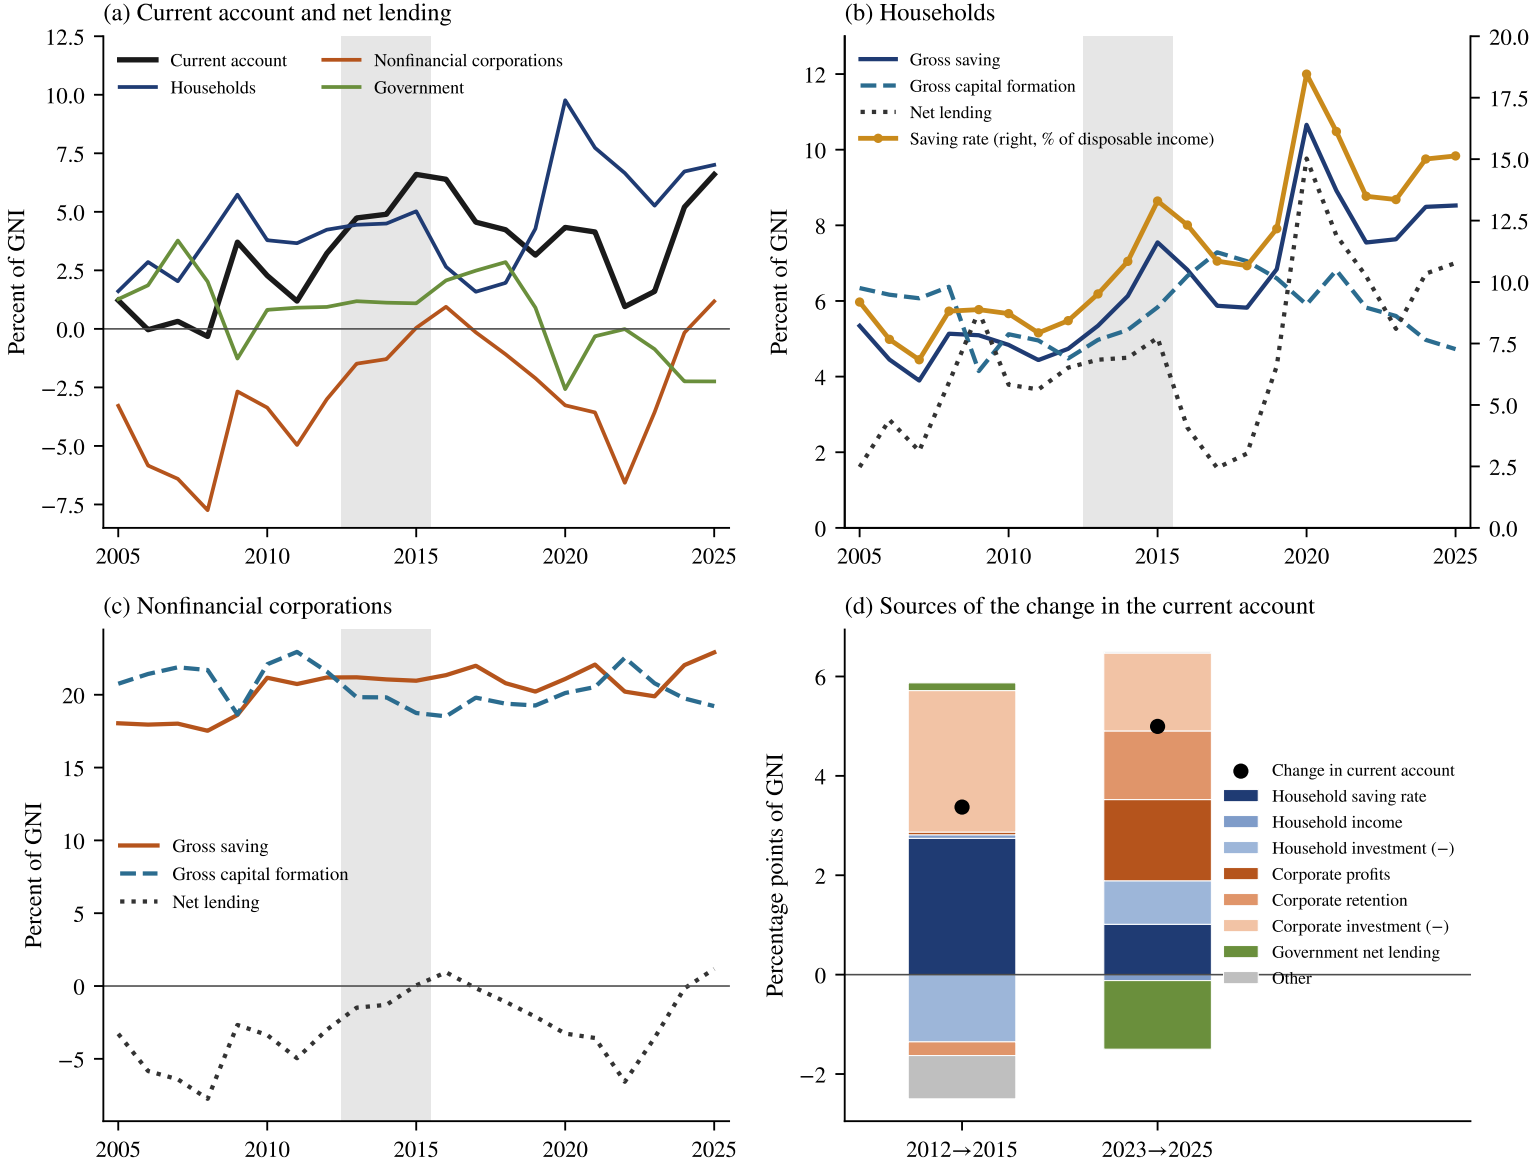
Korea's 2013–15 surplus: a higher household saving rate and weak corporate investment



Notes: Annual, percent of gross national income; shading marks 2013–15. Households include NPISH. (d) Cumulative sums of the saving components over the period (saving-rate and income components for households; profit and retention components for corporations), minus the change in each sector's gross capital formation, plus the change in government net lending. 'Other' is the remainder of the change in the current account (financial corporations, capital transfers, discrepancies). Annual sector accounts end in 2025. Source: OECD sector accounts (Table 14); authors' calculations.